

suggested search: how to get rid of cellulite (no results for cellulite love)

womanhood is a high stress lifestyle, unresponsive to non-invasive treatment.

boy initiates touch.
girl hyperventilates.
her topography is insufficient.

like the formation of her buttocks matters.
like she can be blamed
for sex-specific dimorphic skin architecture.

womanhood is a high stress lifestyle,
but it can be managed by deep penetration radio frequency.

metabolism to blame—
heredity to blame—
hormones to blame
(all of history's downfalls can be traced to estrogen, right?)— underlying causes of orange peel syndrome.

girl is confused as to why
her dimples
could ever be confused with some type of syndrome.

boy replies: Cellulite is rarely seen in males, except those with androgen-deficient states.

New studies show correlation between stress and cellulite!

girl wonders whether insufficiency would be considered pathologic or physiologic.

womanhood is a high stress lifestyle,
but challenged as a legitimate disorder.